New water plant on town meeting warrant

A new water treatment plant for North Wilmington is being planned by the Wilmington Water and Sewer Commissioners. There is to be an article in the warrant for the annual town meeting next spring, asking the voters of Wilmington to approve.

The new plant will supplement the water being treated by the Butters Row water treatment plant, and will also have about three million gallons per day for capacity. The commissioners agreed on the planning last Thursday, after having interviewed, during December, four engineering firms.

The firm of Weston & Sampson was the choice. Weston & Sampson planned the Butters Row plant which was completed about three and one half years ago.

The Butters Row plant was originally planned to remove iron rust from the water supply, but during the planning stages, trichloroethylene (TCE) was discovered in the Chestnut Street well. As a result the Butters Row plant capabilities were expanded to remove TCE.

The Butters Row plant has been hailed nationally as a water plant which removes cancer producing agents (carcinogens) from the water supply.

At this time it is impossible to say what the engineering or construction costs will be. The commissioners will be meeting shortly with the firm of Weston & Sampson to discuss these factors and also discuss the question of a site for the new plant.

The new plant may be constructed near the present plant called the Barrows well field, in North Wilmington, but it could also be near the Gowing Brook well near Salem Street.

The commissioners are also looking forward to the construction of a third water treatment plant, in the vicinity of the cranberry bog off Shawsheen Avenue, but that will be sometime in the future. Two Shawsheen Avenue wells were shut down last year because of rust (iron ore) in the water supply. A well was also shut down, several years ago, off Aldrich Road, for the same reason.

Treasurer's task

Wilmington Collector-Treasurer Marion Murphy is having a busy week, signing her name 3250 times. Her signature is required on each of 3250 bonds with which the town will raise money for the high school renovation project. The $6.5 million bond issue is at 7.9939 percent.

Office building planned at lake

Plans were submitted to the Wilmington Planning Board this week for a 2½ story office building, on the old Ice House lot, opposite Glen Road at Silver Lake. For the past 40 years the lot, which has 38,500 square feet, has afforded a view of Silver Lake from Main Street. Members of the planning board evinced their displeasure when they saw the plans for the proposed building.

The building is proposed to be the property of Baizen Building Corp. of 530 Loring Ave., Salem. The property is zoned for Neighborhood Business, and according to Town Engineer Bob Higgins, the plans meet the law in every respect.

An empty lot, which many years ago was known as the Collins lot, next to the homes on Grove Avenue, is to be the parking lot. A six-foot high fence is proposed, to screen the property from the Grove Avenue homes and the barbershop on Main Street. A 24 inch culvert will be used, to bury the ditch that flows from Silver Lake toward Lubbers Brook.

A second parking lot, for a half dozen cars, is proposed to be located across Main Street from Glen Road. The net office space, in 2½ stories, is to be 7,380 square feet.

Sixty years ago, and more, the lot was the site for the ice houses of Walter Hale. The ice houses burned down three times.

Arena may go to Andover

by Arlene Surprenant
The Elinor M. Ristuccia Memorial Arena may be located in Andover if developer Ben Ristuccia obtains land he is allegedly seeking on Cross Street.

In a brief interview with Town Manager Buzz Stapczynski, he confirmed the fact that Wilmington may not get the proposed olympic-sized ice rink.

Though Stapczynski pointed out that Wilmington would "welcome him" provided all the various zoning bylaw points cited by the planning board are corrected. It's his understanding that Ristuccia is seeking some land on Cross Street in Andover for his ice arena.

If, however, Ristuccia does meet the zoning requirements, which include proper landscaping, restoring vegetated wetlands, marking the parking lot for traffic flow, and obtaining several variances from the board of appeals, among other things, he will be able to obtain a building permit.

Housing authority drops Section Eight housing

by Arlene Surprenant
In a four-to-one vote, the Wilmington Housing Authority (WHA) voted last Wednesday night to terminate the Section Eight HUD housing program. Because of a "poor financial picture" and lack of cooperation by the state, it was decided to drop the program, effective January 30.

The Section Eight program in Wilmington services eight low to moderate income homes presently scattered throughout the town. According to outgoing Executive Director Ken Dorrance, the state will take over so that no one will be evicted and nothing will be changed except the responsibility for administering the program.

Because of a $1,400 fine placed on the WHA by the federal government last February for some administrative errors by the last executive director, the HUD program would have been run on a $385 deficit this year, said Dorrance. And, he explained, he did everything he could to get the fine lifted or lowered, all to no avail.

Some discussion followed. WHA member Dan Gillis asked if dropping the program made it more difficult for a Wilmington resident to get HUD housing.

Dorrance answered that since the WHA never had any real control over who obtained housing anyway and since the waiting list is "incredible," it really wouldn't make much difference. It is true that at a later date, said Dorrance, the federal government can "hold over our heads" the fact that we turned down a federal program and may not consider Wilmington for any more grants.

With Liflian Buckley, the newly appointed executive director on the board to represent the transition of power, the WHA next acted on Dorrance's suggestion to elect someone to act as a "liaison" between the Chapter 667 (elderly housing) architect and the WHA board. This person would be expected to attend a meeting in Boston on January 31 to give input on the person chosen as architect.

According to Dorrance, the state has the final say in naming the architect and the kind of elderly housing to be built. However, to act as a "safeguard" for the WHA, someone should be present to present the WHA's views and ideas on the kind of housing it would like built, be it duplex, "spread out" housing, or something else. Also, certain needs, such as expanding the seating capacity from 40 to 80 in the Deming Way meeting hall, and other suggestions have to be made known to the new architect.

Chairman Kevin McMillan suggested choosing one or two people with enough free time to make sure Wilmington is getting the best quality housing for its money.

Members Bill Strob and Dan Gillis were then chosen to share this responsibility as co-chairmen.

A third concern of the board was Deming Way heating costs.

Dorrance pointed out that they may face heating problems this winter as the maintenance budget is "very low" and heating costs are going up. He suggested thinking about one central heating plant because, efficiency wise, they would be "100 percent better off."

And since the only person who could handle the heating units at Deming Way just died, the WHA was in a bind to resolve their heating problems.

Strob suggested reserving the water circulating pumps, something Elaine Hatchey termed a "number one priority."

Buckley suggested the possibility of tying in to a computer system to maintain and control heat in Deming Way apartments. She said she would have to verify the costs first and see how this was worked in other towns.

Because of a few resident complaints by elderly who feel the cold more than normal, Dorrance suggested using "auxiliary heating" for a few apartments, rather than have the new executive director answer calls at all hours of the day and night.

Bridge for condos would connect streets

Joseph Langone is planning to build a bridge across Lubbers Brook. The bridge would become part of a road he hopes to build, to connect Broad Street and Everett Avenue, to provide access to a condominium development he proposes to build, to be called the White Pine Crossing condominiums.

Broad Street is at the end of King Street, off Glen Road, and presently, King Street is the only access to the area. Everett Avenue is a street which runs between Cunningham Street and Faulkner Avenue. A pedway presently exists where Langone proposes to build the road connecting the two streets. The area is immediately downstream from a town-owned cranberry bog, once known as Winn's Bog.

A pre-cast concrete bridge, Langone told the planning board, would be a convenience. He is planning a development of condominiums on 63 acres he owns northerly of Broad Street. The entrance to the area, if a bridge is to be built, would be from Everett Avenue. That street, too, would facilitate connections to the town sewer on Cunningham Street, and to the gas mains of the Lowell Gas Company.

Langone, a native of Wilmington with ten years experience in the building of homes, told the planning board he could erect 45 to 55 homes on

Tickets on sale for 'Blithe Spirit'

Tickets are now available for the Silver Lake Spotlighters' January 25 and 26 production of 'Blithe Spirit' by Noel Coward. The curtain will go up at 8 p.m. at the North Intermediate School in Wilmington.

'Blithe Spirit', is a British comedy that deals with a writer's attempt to dematerialize the ghost of his first wife. It is complete with the zany antics of a medium, played by Celia Bartolotti of Arlington who manages in her folly to complicate the lives of Charles Condomine, played by Jerry Robbins of North Reading and his wife Ruth, played by Suzanne Fall of Arlington. Skeptics in the play are Dr. and Mrs. Bradman, friends of the Condomines who become entangled in the plot. Dr. Bradman is played by Quentin Risher of Tewksbury and his wife Mrs. Bradman by Madeline Anderson of North Reading. Rounding out this talented cast are the lovely and flirtatious ghost, played by Adrienne Bonaccorsi of Malden and the "not all together" maid, Edith, played by Janice Rudnicki of Wilmington.

'Blithe Spirit', under the skillful direction of Kelley O'Leary of Arlington, is an enjoyable, witty comedy appropriate for all ages.

For ticket information, call the box office, 657-8589, Sunday through Thursday evenings.

Chamber changes from Nicki to Nick

Nicholas Balog, director of the Regional Health Center in Wilmington, has been elected president of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce. The election was held on Tuesday.

Balog, a resident of Salem, N.H., is the vice president of the health center. A native of Connecticut, he holds an MBA degree from Yale.

Balog replaces Nicki Johnson, who had served as chamber president for two years. She is the manager of the Wilmington branch of the Commercial Bank and Trust Co.

Other officers elected were Vice President Don Nickerson and Treasurer Bennett Bedell.

Rambler on real estate

Tewksbury Attorney Bill Rambler will discuss the role of an attorney in a real estate transaction on the Wednesday, January 16 edition of "Talking Real Estate with Ray Forest." The show is seen at 7:30 p.m. on Greater Boston and Lowell Cable television on the local origination channels, 6 and 57.

Rambler, who has practiced law since 1971, joins the show's host, Ray Forest, in examining the type of documents needed when conveying property, legal problems buyers and sellers may encounter when transferring property, and the importance of obtaining legal counsel in a property transaction.

Tewksbury voter registration Friday

A voter registration session will be conducted by the Tewksbury Board of Registrars on Friday, January 11, from 8:30 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. at the town hall.

The session will allow any eligible, new, or previously unregistered residents the opportunity to register so as to be able to vote at the upcoming Special Town Meeting at 7:45 p.m. January 21, 1985.

Town Clerk Elizabeth Carey specifies, however, that the voter registration session does not qualify new registrants to vote at the Adjourned Special Town Meeting which will start at 8 p.m. on January 21.

Nicki Johnson wraps up two years

Nicki Johnson, president for the past two years of the Wilmington Chamber of Commerce, retired from that post on January 8. It was during her tenure of office that the Chamber of Commerce began its study of the electric rate structure of the Reading Municipal Light Department. Mrs. Johnson had a last minute message to the members of the Chamber of Commerce.

"Two years ago, we chose the motto 'Together We Can Do Everything' and we asked you, the members to delineate your major concerns and how the Chamber could help to alleviate them.

"That same month the electric rate increase, which doubled the cost of electricity to some of the largest industrial users, took effect with almost no warning, and made clear the direction in which we should proceed.

"The Town Manager, Buzz Stapczynski, Selectmen Robert Cain and Bobby Doucette and representatives of industry and the Chamber met with the Light Board of Reading to express our concern. We were informed that the board would take them under advisement, but Wilmington was a captive consumer only. Electric light policy was, and would continue to be set only by the Reading

Electric Light Board. The fact that approximately 70 percent of income was derived from Wilmington gave us no right to question the rate structuring policy.

"We left frustrated, but determined. We invited Representative Michael Barrett who, at that time represented Reading and Precinct Three of Wilmington, to our next meeting, to hear our concerns and enlist his aid.

"Our next move was to join the Coalition of Municipal Ratepayers Rights. They had petitioned the Mass. Department of Public Utilities to refrain from approving any further bonding for the Seabrook Project. That petition was accepted, and hearings are underway.

"During the past summer the publicity on the worsening financial position of Seabrook brought the realization that the cost of electricity to Wilmington consumers was likely to be worse than anticipated.

"The Chamber then commissioned Bernstein & Smith, a firm specializing in energy and utility law, to do a study on the Reading Municipal Light Department's rate setting policy, and the effect that this, along with their commitment to Seabrook, would have on Wilmington in the future.

"The study has now been completed. The results confirm that the rate structure is discriminatory against Wilmington. The costs of Seabrook debt, in the years to come will be financially crippling, to both the business and resident community.

"Furthermore, Wilmington has been informed that 'in lieu of tax' payment, which Reading Light has given to the outside towns which are serviced by the system, will not be forthcoming this year. This will mean a loss of approximately $200,000 to the Town of Wilmington for the 1985 budget.

"A joint meeting of the Chamber, the industrial and the town representatives was held on December 27. A course of action was delineated. Steps to be taken by the town and business and industry, both as individual entities, and in concert with each other, was laid out.

letters to the editor

Dear Larz:

The holiday activities are behind us, and we have just embarked on a new year. The next activities to be upon us is that of political activities for the various town officers to be elected at our upcoming town meeting. It is to this activity I wish to speak.

After having served for some years as the elected representative from Wilmington to the Shawsheen Valley Regional Vocational Technical High School, I have decided not to seek reelection to that committee.

I am making this public announcement in hopes of encouraging wider participation by those voters interested in technical education for our young people. I encourage anyone with a sincere interest to secure the necessary papers, and to develop an intelligent platform from which to run for this important town office.

In closing, may I again quote Mr. John W. Gardner, former secretary of education, "The society which scorns excellence in plumbing because plumbing is a humble activity... And tolerates shoddiness in philosophy because it is an exalted activity... will have neither good plumbing nor good philosophy... neither its pipes nor its theories will hold water."

Sincerely,
Frank H. McLean

Dear Captain Larz:

I would appreciate it if you could publish this in the Wilmington Town Crier, as a special and sincere note of gratitude to all those people involved in giving Mr. DeGrazia such a wonderful tribute! Wishing you a New Year filled with happiness, good health and the very best.

Our sincerest gratitude to all those who participated in the special tribute to Mr. Domenic De Grazia, fondly known as "Mr. D."

On Monday, December 17, 1984, the Wilmington High School Band led by Miss Barbara Mette and Miss Lorraine Kalil, paraded up Pleasant Street in Lexington to "Mr. D's" residence. With pompous dignity and a mysterious aura of magic, a distant sound of drums could be heard and the flicker of instruments reflecting amongst the passing cars and Christmas lights, created a mystical picture.

When they approached Mr. DeGrazia's home, the band lined up in rank, dressed in their regal uniforms. A high banner encompassed the entire front line with "Merry Christmas Mr. D." enchantingly embossed across it. Mr. and Mrs. DeGrazia and one of their four grandchildren, Marie, came to the front door and stood in amazement and overwhelming surprise as the band opened the program with "Code of Honor," one of Mr. D's original works dedicated to the national police and all law enforcements. Its history is one of great triumph. Recorded and performed by the Boston Pops Orchestra under the direction of Arthur Fiedler, it is also included in the repertoire of the President's own Marine Band. "Mr. D." smiled with pride as he watched and listened attentively to these high school students, most of whom he started teaching instrumentally beginning in the third grade.

As the band continued its program with the "Anzio March," another original composition composed by Mr. DeGrazia, the surrounding neighbors and cars were aroused with curiosity and the thunderous applause grew with excitement.

The lively spirit of "Yankee Saints," a medley of patriotic songs especially arranged by "Mr. D." for the Wilmington Band, gave rise to an overjoyed atmosphere as Santa came from the North Pole to extend his congratulations and tribute.

The program came to a gradual close with several familiar Christmas caroles, ending with "Silent Night," an emotional and most fitting finale.

A handmade "W" signed with a music note and a specially designed plaque featuring all the participating students, was presented to "Mr. D." Following this momentous event, a party took place. Various reporters and photographers were present to interview "Mr. D." expressed his surprise and sentiments. As the students surrounded him, Mr. DeGrazia explained how Wilmington is still considered his "adopted home" even though he was forced to retire in 1981 due to severe progressive disabilities. He explained how "There's nothing wrong with youngsters today. If they have the right training, are occupied and are interested in something, they don't get into trouble." He continued, "I trained my students like a military outfit. There's good in every child. What these students have given me is the best tonic and no doctor could prescribe better medication. As "Mr. D." spoke, the students became tearful reflecting on the fond memories of "Mr. D's" sense of humor, firm and respected teaching.

Domenic DeGrazia, noted artist, teacher and composer began his own musical training at the tender age of seven under the tutelage of his father. Nurtured by many of the finest teachers in the music field, they recognized his intrinsic talent and groomed him for public performances in the artistic field. As a concert violinist, he made many professional performances and became a member of the Metropolitan and People's Symphony Orchestra under the direction of the renowned Fabian Seivitsky.

In January, 1942, Mr. DeGrazia enlisted into the army at the onset of World War II. After basic training in Camp Croft, South Carolina, he was appointed director of music where he organized choral groups, operettas and became broadcast manager and liaison officer for public broadcast on stations WSPA and WORD. He was band director of the post headquarters and the IRTC Band. As soloist and director of bands and choruses, he gave numerous performances around the 4th corps area.

Suddenly, his musical endeavor came to an abrupt halt as he was sent overseas on active duty. During this time he saw action in Africa, Sicily and Italy and served in the 82nd Airborne Division. Thus the staging for the "Anzio March." Later he appeared as first violinist with the renowned San Carlo Opera Co. at the Royal Opera House, Caserta, Italy. On his return to civilian life, Mr. DeGrazia was appointed director of the Boston Archdiocesan Holy Name Choral Society and Concert Orchestra by his Eminence Richard Cardinal Cushing. Together, these two groups presented over 400 concerts throughout the New England region as well as a series of local and national broadcasts. An impressive background for a man in his early 20s.

In 1946, "Mr. D." was appointed director of music education for Mission Schools of Boston where his bands and choruses received countless awards and trophies in competitions with other organizations of New England and Canada. Later, he was appointed director of music in the Wilmington Public Schools. Nineteen fifty-one brought him the appointment of organizer and director of the Sons of Italy Choral Society by Honorable Anthony Julian. Eventually he created his own organization, The Baystaters Glee Club of Boston. Mr. DeGrazia is credited for a countless array and variety of musical compositions. He is also the author of several books including "Music in the Humanities and and Arts" as well as Music Pedagogy for public and private instruction.

Through his career he has been commissioned and has performed numerous works including "Jubilato Deo," a choral selection which received an overwhelming ovation from an audience of 50,000 who were present at its premier performances at Braves Field; "Mardi Gras in New Orleans," a three act musical comedy which debuted at the Lynn Auditorium; "Mount Surabachi," an orchestral work depicting the Battle of Iwo Jima subsequent flag raising dedicated to the U.S. Marine Corps and his brother Captain Joseph M. DeGrazia, who served in WWII and the Korean Conflict. This major work won citations and decorations presented by the Marine Commandant; "The U.S.S. Topeka," commissioned by the U.S. Navy in 1961, performed in New York, received commendations from the Rear Admiral, W.N. Leonard of the sixth fleet; "Pushcarts," a three act musical comedy performed with raving reviews in Wilmington, Lawrence, Boston Sheraton and the U.S.S. Wasp (aircraft carrier) for which he was later commissioned to compose the U.S.S. Wasp official anthem.

Domenic DeGrazia, a resident of Lexington for over 25 years, resides with his dedicated wife. He also has three lovely daughters and fine son-in-laws, plus four wonderful grandchildren. A man, with such a gifted and dedicated background, regrettably forced to retire due to serious medical consequences, still reflects especially on his "adopted home" of Wilmington. The honor bestowed on him by the students on December 17, 1984, is one of the most specially treasured and memorable tributes of all.

Deepest gratitude, appreciation and great affection to the students, parents, administrators, personnel, colleagues, Margaret A. Leonard, (director of performing and fine arts) and the town of Wilmington!!

Cordially,
Mary-Angela DeGrazia-DiFucci
(Members of the De Grazia family)

Dear Larz:

As I thumbed thru your Christmas edition - letters to the editor - the salutation, "Dear Hometown," caught my attention.

Eagerly reading about memories long past, a nostalgia that will live on in our hearts and minds forever.

It was so nice to hear from Audrey, memories so very well expressed and appreciated.

Yes, those were the days - skipping to Buck's store (now Elia's Country Store), from the Whitefield School, for a nickel candy bar or penny candy. My brothers, Lennart and Lars, walking to Buck's Store with our pet pig, Grunty, following along like a little puppy. And - the odor of Harriman's Tannery (where Dinette World is now).

Skating on my ankles at the North Wilmington pumping station with Mary Lou Swain, Rose Enos, Beverly Rounds, the Jensens, the Thorpes, Gregory Hakey, the Fiorenzas and many more - keeping warm by a fire on the ice. The town dammed the brooks, flooding the area, providing a beautiful place to skate.

Skipping to Mrs. Ethel Williams' home on Andover Street for my first art lesson, and to Mary Lou's house, fascinated by Devils Den in her back yard.

Air raid practice at the Whitefield School during World War II - hiding under our desks - the nightmares about war. Gathering around the radio listening to the news Gabriel Heter, relived when the war ended.

Being from opposite sides of the town, our lives didn't blend until sixth grade at the now extinct Center School. Decorating the blackboards with colored chalk drawings for my homeroom teacher, Betty Sullivan. Miss Sharp (Mrs. Brennan) and the paddle club - all I remember is the paddle - after school one day - Ouch! And, I didn't do anything wrong!

Watching Arthur Lynch talking during a test, seventh grade, I got the "O." Ninth grade at the old High School (Swain School) - Jensen's outhouse (from Andover Street) put on the front steps of the school on Halloween night. Remember the year, our barn burned on Andover Street, seemed the whole town came to see the towering inferno, including Bobby Cain - talking to him as he sat in his flashy car in our driveway.

Friendships we'll always treasure, not only from our class of '53," but all the other classes before and after us. Wouldn't it be a good idea to combine several classes to celebrate reunions since our class was so small.

Great admiration for Sam Thorpe's artistic talent - Janet Backman's superior skating ability - Anne Benett's dancing talent.

Then, May Day was such a memorable occasion all through our 12 years of school - all the grammar schools participated in the celebration on the dusty Wilmington town common, which is so beautifully landscaped now. Ginny Stevens crowned May Queen '53" the year we graduated, a beautiful tradition worth reviving.

"Are the maples full grown now or cut down?" What's that saying??? You can never go home." Didn't you read my poem, "Where has Wilmington gone?" Title should be "Our Wilmington."

Prepare yourself for changes in the appearance, air, water and the atmosphere is not like you and I remember it. And the traffic - Whow!!!

Yes, we are now an industrial community - not a rural residential paradise as we once knew it, brightly illuminated by the glow of our "industrial city," as I call it. Blessed by jobs galore, Wilmington has more than fulfilled its duty to society.

And, the "Light of the World, the Christchild," was aglow all over town, in our churches, homes and our beautifully decorated town common, as the candles glowed through the service, magically illuminating the Congregational Church, the bells chimed, echoing thru the town Christmas Eve.

May the Good Lord bless and keep you and yours, Audrey, till you return to Wilmington, Massachusetts and thanks for writing.

Oh, by the way, when you return, please bring a maple - so many are gone and those remaining should be replaced.

With love,
Sonja Maria Christiansen

Lawrence tips Wildcats, 52-48

Wilmington High School's varsity basketball boys continue to improve with each game, but a victory has been hard to come by, with the latest loss being a tough 52-48 setback to the Lawrence Lancers.

The Wildcats' overall record dropped to 1-5 when the team shot 35 percent from the field in the third quarter to fall behind.

Coach Dave Orndorff's charges did manage to chop the margin down to three points with 40 seconds to play before a turnover ended the comeback.

Senior center Mike Buckley led the locals with 14 points and 10 rebounds. Chris Parr contributed 10 points and eight boards, while guard Russ Lydon dished out eight assists. Eric Johnson came up with a fine job off the bench, grabbing six rebounds and scoring six points.

Coach Larry McGrath's junior varsity improved to 5-1 on the season with a 71-62 victory over Lawrence. Mike Lombard took game high honors for the winners with 28 points, followed by Joe McMenimen with 14 points.

WHS wrestling

Wildcats drop league openers

The Wildcat wrestlers opened league competition this past week with two losses. The Raiders of Lowell stopped the Cats, 58-6 on Wednesday night. Junior Paul Cantwell (121) decided Ron Miller and captain Dave Hanson (unl) decided Paul Haley for the lone Wildcat points of the evening.

Saturday's match against the Reggie's of Greater Lawrence was a heartbreaker for the young Wildcats. The Reggie's outscored the Cats 35-32 sending them to 0-2 in MVC competition. The teams traded superior decisions at the 100 and 107 pound weight classes for a 5-5 tie. Freshman Allan Tote (107) turned in a 17-0 performance, bringing him to a 4-4 overall record. Mark Russell (114) posted a 15-9 decision. Paul Cantwell (121) and Bill Szydlowski both pinned their opponents in the second period, giving them 5-3 overall records.

Joe Hall (140) garnered a first period pin, boosting the score to 26-11 Wilmington. The Reggie's came back with four straight pins pushing the score to 35-26 before Dave Hanson chipped in the final six points for a 35-32 final.

Wilmington Youth Basketball

Lynnfield snaps Wilmington streak

Wilmington's eighth grade traveling basketball team ran into a tough Lynnfield team Saturday and its' three game win streak was snapped, 76-48. Hitting for 22 points was Stephen Hanafin, with 18 points for Jeff Bowen. Both players also worked hard defensively with numerous rebounds.

Brian Pupa and Sean Colclough sank four points each. Colclough played a fine game, along with Mike Buonopane and Ronnie Pennie. Mike George and Jamie Robichaud provided needed relief for the undermanned eighth graders.

Sunday the young Wildcats hosted Burlington and got back on the winning track in a squeaker, 38-35. The score was tied after both the second and third quarters, but a steal and two foul shots by Jeff Bowen in the fourth quarter put the team ahead for good.

High scorer with 22 points and several blocked shots was Stephen Hanafin, followed by Bowen with seven, Mike Buonopane four, Sean Colclough three and Mark Palmisano two. Along with Hanafin, Palmisano and Brian Pupa pulled down some timely rebounds and Ronnie Pennie controlled the ball while the clock ticked down. Chris Riccio was strong coming off the bench in this exciting team effort.

The sixth grade Wildcats lost a hard fought game, 34-32 to visiting Burlington at Shawsheen Tech Sunday afternoon. The Wildcats led the scoring most of the game and had posted a 20-12 halftime lead. Both the starting and secondary units displayed sharp passing during the first half.

The scoring was contributed by Bobby Caruso (14), Michael Hawley (6), Greg Maiella (5), Greg Scarfo (4), Richard Moore (2) and Matt Ryan (1). Solid rebounding efforts came from Moore, G. Maiella and Caruso.

Good ballhandling was turned in by Anthony Bonnarigo, Eric Heselton, Andy Jamerson, Jimmy Maiella and Bobby Palazzi. A number of key passes were converted to hoops due to the efforts of the guard-forward units. Kevin Lewis and Joey Cunningham provided hard work under the boards.

Redmen finally rebound

The Tewksbury High School basketball team is off to its' best start in almost 12 years. Clockwise: The TMHS cheerleaders and increasing numbers of fans have had plenty to get excited about; Barry and Brian Dick have helped drive the TMHS frontcourt; and the quick guard tandem of Tim Boudreau and Joe Vecchi has proven to be effective both offensively and defensively.

Round building was designed to save money

It makes a very good town hall, even if it is not located in the center of town. The Wilmington Town Hall is the former Glen Road School, a "round" school, designed to save the taxpayers money, and constructed at a cost of less than half a million dollars.

The proposed school building it replaced, and which was never constructed, was to cost $1.5 million. It was to be an architect's dream, a dream of grandeur.

Governor Foster Furcolo of Massachusetts, in January 1959, made a special trip to Wilmington to help dedicate a school in which, for once, the design was for excellence, without frills.

About 18 months previously the town of Wilmington had voted to appoint a school building committee, for the construction of a new grade school in the Silver Lake area. That building committee appointed an architect. They chose, for a site, the cornfield of the former "Pop" Christian Neilson.

Do not blame the committee for the dreams put on paper by the architect. None of them were professional builders.

The architects of Massachusetts, or some of them, were having a race to see who could build the most ornate school. Never mind the expense — the taxpayers can pay for it! That was, of course, long before the days of the taxpayer's revolt, otherwise known as Proposition 2½.

Games were being played by some of the architects. An architect who succeeded in selling plans for an expensive school not only earned a larger fee, but got his school and his picture in various publications. And, in some instances, the architect could also go to some other town and sell the plans all over again, at full prices.

Or so a few people believed. Those people didn't like what they saw in Massachusetts.

Then came a meeting of the Wilmington School Committee, in which the plans were available for inspection. The Town Crier was there. The Town Crier left that meeting with a copy of the plans and a copy of the specifications. No permission was asked.

The plans were hard to believe. There was to be a central core building with four rooms etc. for administration.

From that core building four glass covered walkways led to four additional buildings, perhaps 40 feet away. The additional buildings were each to have four class rooms. The plans could be described as being a "huge pinwheel."

It would be a very expensive school to heat, even in those days of low fuel costs, with all that glass exposed to the weather. It would also be an expensive school to maintain, considering that little (and big) boys like to hear the sound of shattering glass, at least sometimes.

The four walkways were not to be just plain corridors, surrounded by glass. The architect had provided places for plants to be grown, to beautify the area. Included in the specifications were to be 10,000 thyme plants.

A special town meeting was called to vote funds for the school. The Town Crier published the plans and specifications and told the story of the Ten Thousand Thyme Plants.

That story had its impact. The voters refused the funding of the school. A new building committee was appointed, to submit new plans.

Some hard-headed persons were appointed to that committee. There was Paul Niles, an attorney who made construction contracts for the U.S. Government. There was Erwin Hanke, an engineer for a prominent defense contractor. Vincent McLain was comptroller of a Boston business firm.

And the new town manager of Wilmington, Alfred Calabrese, appointed former town manager Joseph Courtney. Courtney was at this time an appointee, in administration and finance in the state house.

The committee was appointed to be a permanent building committee (PBC) of Wilmington. One member was to retire at the end of each year and a new appointment made. This would ensure a majority of experienced persons at all times, in the planning of school or other buildings.

Working rules were established. A firm of architects was hired which agreed that the town would own the plans, and be entitled to use those plans as many times as wanted. Discussions with the architects brought out that a round building is most economical to build and operate, and thus was the concept of round schools arrived at.

Twelve classrooms plus other purpose rooms were planned, with a space in the middle to be devoted to a cafeteria, as it was called — a place for lunch, and a place for school assemblies.

The committee looked forward to constructing other schools around town. Grade school children could walk to neighborhood schools and save the town a lot of bus transportation charges.

Governor Furcolo came out to help dedicate that school building — an effort, he noted, to reduce tax costs for the people. The town had saved about $1 million.

A second school was built, off Boutwell Street. It cost a little over half a million dollars because of a few architectural changes, but the total was still a lot less than had been planned ($1.5 million) for just one school. The PBC was proving that the concept worked.

The schools were comfortable, and easy to keep clean. Wilmington, and the grade pupils of Wilmington benefitted.

But the man who was superintendent of schools was unhappy. It was, to him, no school house. He enlisted the assistance of persons in the Massachusetts Department of Education. It was a long struggle on his part. Quite possibly he was assisted by some architects who could see a loss in the business of redesigning school buildings they had already built.

No more round schools were constructed in Massachusetts. The School Building Commission, it was said would not approve.

But Wilmington saved a lot of tax dollars over the years. And now Wilmington has a town hall in which all the big wheels can go round and round.

The round town hall — actually it has 17 sides.

Kelley was charged with leaving the scene of an accident, and operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of alcohol, and bailed for a Monday court appearance.

The Tewksbury - Wilmington Lodge of Elks, in cooperation with the police departments of Tewksbury and Wilmington will sponsor a drug awareness evening, January 23 for parents and students. The program will be from 7:00 to 9:00 and will be most informative.

Go-ahead given for Ballardvale Street work

Ballardvale Street, North Wilmington may now be reconstructed. The Town of Wilmington has a credit of $1 million from the state, to help with the work, and it has the blessings of the Massachusetts Secretary of Environmental Affairs.

Ballardvale Street is now an industrial area, and surveys have been, for the past several years, many. The Wilmington town engineer and assistants, and the firm of Dana Perkins of Reading have been doing the work and prepared the final report last fall.

The secretary of environmental affairs has issued a statement saying that the final environmental report submitted for the reconstruction does adequately and properly comply with the requirements of Massachusetts General Laws, Chapter 30. The secretary further commended Town Engineer Bob Higgins and the firm of Dana Perkins for a thorough and substantive response, to the intent of the Massachusetts Environmental Policy Act.

• Condos

(Continued from Page One) the property he owns, or 94 units of condo housing. The condo housing, he feels, is superior in many ways. He explained in detail the methods used in condo housing.

Most of the owners, he said, are elderly couples, young couples, or singles, such as technicians or airline stewards, in other such condo units. In a condo area off Shawshen Street in Tewksbury, there have been 131 condos sold, and there are only seven children.

He proposes to lay slabs for foundations for the condos, and to possibly utilize heat pumps, in addition to gas heat, for heating the buildings. The buildings will be 2½ stories high, of which two stories will belong to the individual condo owners.

Tennis courts, he said, such as have been constructed in Methuen, are never used by the condo owners. In Methuen, it is the neighbors who come to the tennis courts, not the condo owners.

The proposal for a sewer to Cunningham Street was discussed briefly by Langone. He hopes to use a gravity sewer, and from a preliminary viewpoint, it will be quite feasible.

The condominium proposal will have to be approved by a town meeting, according to the Wilmington zoning by-law. Langone hopes to be able to meet with and talk to neighbors, to discuss the proposal. He has definite plans on the subject.

Cheese and butter available

There is still some cheese and butter available. Any Wilmington resident 60 years old or older, or low income persons under 60 can receive these products if they have not received them before this year. Call the Center (657-7595) for more information.

Articles left from fair

It is not too late to make an application for fuel assistance. Applications are still being made out at the Center for qualifying residents 60 years of age or older. Call the Center at 658-2258 or 657-7595 for information.

Medex enrollment

Blue Cross and Blue Shield will hold Medex enrollment from January 1 to March 31. The purpose of the open enrollment period is to provide an opportunity for persons who previously failed to subscribe to Medex at the age of 65 or who dropped it to enroll in another insurance policy.

Those who enroll now will have their Medex coverage start July 1. People who are currently enrolled in Medex Standard or Medex II will be given an opportunity to upgrade their coverage during this period. Notification of this opportunity will be given in the first quarter billing for 1985.

The Council has requested Medex forms be sent to the Center. They should arrive sometime this week. Those interested in this supplemental medical coverage may get an application at the Center.

Winter weather dangerous

Although this has been a mild winter up to now, it must be kept in mind that winter is a time of many illnesses and injuries. Cold icy weather can bring about heart attacks, frostbite and asthma attack as well as broken bones due to falls. It is also a time of accidental hypothermia. Elderly persons are most vulnerable to hypothermia, especially if they live alone or are isolated. Those who do not shiver or react to cold normally, are ill or unable to move about, or take any drugs are advised to keep the house temperature no lower than 70 degrees.

In Salem — Part I

The making of a television movie

By JIM ROUILLARD

This story began almost three centuries ago, but very close by, in mid-winter in New England.

And just as the tale of accusation, political motivation, suicide, mass imprisonment and death involved the great, the middle and the small, everyday people — its re-enactment for public television this spring has involved scores of Massachusetts people, from research and conception to actors, crew and extras, including Rita Doherty of Woburn.

The tale is of witchcraft — or, more properly, the human consequences of a witchhunt — whose results, history teaches, again, and again, can only be far worse than the practice of witchcraft itself.

Yet out of tragedy emerged individual acts of courage, heroism, defiance of judicial tyranny — and the enduring love of three sisters.

The story is "Three Sovereigns for Sarah," a three-part television series based on the 17th-century Salem witch trials — filmed entirely in Massachusetts, featuring renowned British actress Vanessa Redgrave in the title role, and slated for airing on the Public Broadcasting System (PBS) this coming May.

And Rita Doherty of Woburn was lucky enough to have an intensely personal and vivid involvement in the filming.

Like many tragic tales, the Salem witch trials had small beginnings:

"It began in obscurity, with cautious experiments in fortune telling...all over New England...young people were being 'led away with little sorceries'...One of the girls devised a primitive crystal ball — the white of an egg suspended in a glass — and received a chilling answer: in the glass there floated 'a specter in the likeness of a coffin.' What had begun as fearful curiosity was turning to sharp panic.

"The magic they had tried to harness was beginning, instead, to ride them: visibly, dramatically, ominously."

Paul Boyer and Stephen Nissenbaum,

"Salem Possessed"

That was in 1692, in mid-winter.

The descendants of many of the chief characters in the tale are still among us — and it's a tale whose first faithful re-enactment for film or the stage, comes now, according to writer-producer Vic Pisano of Nahant.

"Three Sovereigns for Sarah," is an historically authentic dramatization of the witch trials — and part of a continuing story, which provides still for controversy and debate among historians and students — and plain fascination for reader, tourist, writer and observer.

For Rita Doherty, Woburn native, resident, nurse, and wife of the city's fire chief, Robert Doherty, her involvement in the story began last summer, when she was invited by Mark Leavitt, production manager for filming of the mini-series, to work on location in her professional capacity as a nurse and, incidentally, as an extra in the cast.

Co-incidentally, I had requested and received permission from assistant producer Cathy Roszell Jones to visit the set and write a story about the production — and meeting Rita Doherty came as an unexpected bonus, when she agreed to share her on-location experiences with Middlesex East.

Rita's duties with the actors and crew took her to Hog's Island, off Crane's Beach in Ipswich, Salem's Pickering Wharf, and the Rebecca Nurse Estate in Danvers, where she said, though much of her time was spent in patient silent waiting as scenes for the film were reshot again, again, and again — it also involved plenty of sheer, unalloyed excitement.

In preparation for the script for the series, Vic Pisano, whose company, Nightowl Productions of Salem, is creating the film for PBS' American Playhouse, said he spent two years in research of primary historical documents — and even obtained handwriting analyses of several of the play's key characters.

—And his research progress,

WOBURN'S RITA DOHERTY appears here sufficiently grim (mainly because the sun was directly in her eyes) to serve as an extra for the upcoming PBS television production of "Three Sovereigns for Sarah," a mini-series based on the Salem witch trials and filmed entirely in Massachusetts. The production features British actress Vanessa Redgrave in the title role. (Jim Rouillard photo)

Tidbits of US history

FM TALK: Our gallivanting-around correspondent was last seen getting up from his chair in front of the refrigerator, where you may recall he often comes up with some of his best ideas, and abruptly dashing out the door. He may be somewhere in the Green Mountains of Vermont by now, gingerly pursuing a hot story. We're not sure, but in the meantime he has left us with another edition of his off-beat tidbits on American history. While we all eagerly await his return, relax and enjoy:

Around the time James A. Garfield was sitting in the oval office in the White House, members of the nouveau riche were attempting to outdo each other with extravaganzas. These included a dinner held in honor of a dog who was given a $15,000 collar, and a gentleman who had his dentist implant tiny diamonds in his front teeth so that he could have a diamond-studded smile.

One of the wealthiest families of the nouveau riche then were the Vanderbilts, who had a mausoleum constructed at New Dorp, Staten Island, at a cost of $1,500,000. They then hired around-the-clock security to protect it.

Hanging pictures on walls became the "in" thing to do in homes of the well-to-do during the late 1880's.

Is it possible that Chrysler president Lee Iacocca had a great grandfather in the horse carriage business? An ad for the Bradley Two Wheeler carriage in 1888 proclaimed the following: "Guaranteed Absolutely Free from Horse Motion." Sounds like an ad slogan Mr. Iacocca would come up with, doesn't it?

You don't often hear about superstitions in the White House, but here's one that took place during most of Benjamin Harrison's term: Electric lights were installed in the White House during Harrison's term, but he and his wife were so petrified of electricity that they refused to switch them on and off. Instead they left that responsibility to the servants.

One of the biggest White House scandals centered around Grover Cleveland, who admitted publicly that he had fathered a son out of wedlock.

Cleveland was evidently prone toward poor judgement at least one other time in his life, when he encouraged Franklin D. Roosevelt not to run for president. Roosevelt was only a boy when Cleveland discouraged him, and obviously never took his advice.

James A. Garfield was one of the brightest and most talented presidents. The last president to be born in a log cabin, the classically educated president could write both Greek and Latin. These were not his most extraordinary abilities. Garfield was ambidextrous, and could write Greek with one hand while writing Latin with the other at the same time.

Feminists would have had a field day during the late 1800's, when many physicians attributed a decline in a female's general health to increased education. According to "The Physician and Sexuality in Victorian America," doctors believed that a woman's brain was simply not equipped to handle advanced education. The theory was so rampant, in fact, that studies were conducted to prove that education was harmful to a woman's physical and mental well-being. One such study, printed in the "Medical Pisano said, the story of the love of three sisters emerged — each accused and found guilty of practicing witchcraft — and he has carried this story along, as a painstakingly accurate historical play, through the vehicle of the Salem witch trials.

Part of the painstaking nature of the production was made evident in interviews with some of the characters, extras, production members and crew.

Costume designer Carol Ramsey of Boston and historical consultants Stephen Nissenbaum, of Amherst and Richard Trask, of Danvers, especially, provided an intensive and fascinating overview of the immensity of the team efforts required to create as painstakingly authentic a production as "Three Sovereigns for Sarah."

Providing costumes for the production was a particularly challenging job, Ramsey said, since primary source material for the period is very limited, with only about a dozen paintings of period costume available. Only one actual known garment has survived from that period, she said: a buff-coat, or man's military coat made of soft, thick, undyed leather.

A big part of the challenge, she added, was to design the costumes, and then to mix existing and "built" costumes to achieve the desired effect.

Clothing truly reflected a person's social status then, Carol said. Men's frock coats were the most difficult costumes to "build," or create from scratch, she said, and the number of pleats starting at the back of the hip in a frock-coat indicated a man's wealth: the more pleats, the wealthier the man.

As for the women of the time, one luxury they allowed themselves, Carol said, was really fine linens, imported from Holland, and good fabrics, like

By ANTHONY MANCONI

Live and let live is fine — but — live and 'help' live is better. Isn't it strange that people without children bring them up so well?

A clergyman looking over the congregation said, "If I don't see a five-dollar bill in the collection this morning, I'm going to reveal the name of a man who is living the life of Riley." There were four five-dollar bills, and one two-dollar bill, with a note attached, saying, "I am three dollars short, but I promise to bring them next Sunday!"

There was a refrain that was shouted and screamed over and over again in most Italian homes in my neighborhood many years ago. My Aunt Maria's home was no exception. It would start when each of her five daughters reached the age of 18. This litany would begin, "Get married — get married! You're 18, what do you want to be — an old maid?" But when her only son, Angelo, announced his intentions to marry, my Aunt Maria went into a fit. "Get married? What the heck do you want to get married for — you're only 39 years old!"

How long a minute is depends on which side of the bathroom door you're on.

Sign in a restaurant: "Please don't insult our waiters — customers we can always get!"

The average woman would rather have beauty than brains because the average man can see better than he can think.

I acknowledge with thanks many wonderful people who helped me distribute more than 3,000 Christmas poems which were so graciously printed for me by my friend Jerry Kaestner of Melrose. I thank Fr. Richard Brady of St. Barbara's in Woburn, Frs. John Crispo and Martin Ryan S.U. of St. Margaret's in Burlington, Fr. Arthur Reardon of St. Mary's in Winchester, Frs. Mark Hannon and John Sutton of St. Patrick's in Stoneham, and Mr. Paul Haggerty, Mr. Louis O'Malley of Woburn, Connie Johnson of Wakefield, Kenny Binding of Winchester, and Capt. Larz Neilson of Wilmington.

Mrs. O'Brien's husband Timothy was ill. Mrs. Moore, a neighbor, asked how he was. "I'm all worn out watching him," complained Mrs. O'Brien. "Why don't you get a nurse for him, then?" asked Mrs. Moore. "He has a nurse — that's why I have to watch him!"

Mark Aloisi came running home and said to his mother, "I'm the best boy in my class." "Did Sister Dorothy tell you that, Mark?" "No, Ma, I noticed it all by myself."

"City Hall," said a friendly voice on the telephone. "Is this really City Hall?" asked a nervous, timid voice. "Yes, it is — with whom do you wish to speak, ma'am?" "Oh, I guess nobody," said the caller. "I just found this telephone number on a slip of paper in my husband's coat pocket."

The one thing that is lacking in some American homes is 'the family.'

The Wilmington Kiwanis Club honored Julie Stedman recently. Bob Tilton presented Julie with a plaque and a savings bond. Julie won three gold medals last spring at Jackson Hole, Wyoming. She is a junior at Wilmington High School and is a member of the school gymnastics team and has also run cross-country on an artificial limb. Julie, the inspiration and courage you give all who know you is commendable — you are indeed a beautiful young lady. You are the first to be named 'honorary member of the Woodchips column.'

Lt. John Mackey of the Tewksbury Police was among 250 law enforcement officers who graduated recently from the 139th session of the Federal Bureau of Investigation's National Academy, according to James W. Greenleaf, special agent in charge of the Boston office of the FBI. William H. Webster is the director of the FBI and former director Honorable Clarence M. Kelley was the principal speaker at the graduation ceremonies at the academy in Quantico, Va. on Dec. 14.

America is justly proud of all the members of this elite group — their soundness of moral principle and character, honesty and uprightness personifies the word, 'integrity.'

Lenny Merullo of Reading, a shortstop for the Chicago Cubs in the 30s and 40s, spoke at the Wilmington Kiwanis Club. His topic, of course, was 'baseball.' Lenny is the northwest representative of a major league scouting bureau.

I started the baseball season in high school by walking the first five batters. Coach Robert O'Keefe ran out to the mound and grabbed the ball out of my hand, shouting, "Out, out, out!" "Gee, coach," I said timidly, "Can't you see — I've got a 'no hitter' going!"

I welcome the following new readers of Woodchips: Tracy Heenan of Reading, who attends Salem State; Mary Jo and her sister, Alison Pymn of Burlington, who are on the gymnastic team; Betty Wolfe of Wilmington, a welcomed member to Realty World of Real Estate. Also the following charter members of Woodchips: Sandy of Pinewood Gardens; Fred Neilson and Ed Sargent of Wilmington; Ed Baratta of Winchester; Joseph Foley and Joe Budreau of Tewksbury; Mary Jane Seaberg of Stoneham; Maureen Lanpher of Woburn; and Saul Ziner of Lynnfield.

I complained to my timekeeper that my pay was $2 short. Looking at the ledger, the paymaster said, "You're right — you are $2 short — but look here. You were overpaid $2 last week — why didn't you complain then?" "Well," I answered, "one mistake I can tolerate but not two in a row!"

Road maps tell you everything — except how to 'refold' the darn things.

A huge cement truck collided with a police van carrying a load of prisoners. Bob Giguere, police dispatcher, sent out this message: "Attention all cars. Be on the lookout for 12 'hardened' criminals!"

Poem

HOPE

Though Christmas is gone and New Year's Too,
That is no reason to feel blue.
We look ahead to
Valentine's Day,
When young at heart
I'm sure will say,

I'll love you till
the end of time,
My pockets full
or without a dime.
Through storm and gale

and darkest night,
My love for you
will make things bright.

It may have snowed
the whole night long,
And you long to hear
a robin's song.
True love, like time,
will have no end,
And summer will soon
come back again.

The making of a television movie

woolens, and some silks, which reflected the quality of the well-to-do in the sumptuousness of the cloth itself.

Carol said she tried to put more color in the costuming than is generally perceived for the period — and the color was reflected, for example, in the deep red tone of the cape of one of the women extras, as well as in the frock-coats of magistrates and other officials.

Stephen Nissenbaum, one of the historical consultants for the production, and professor of history in the University of Massachusetts at Amherst, underscored Rita Doherty's claim that the work on a production like "Three Sovereigns for Sarah," can be extremely painstaking as well as thrilling.

"They really work hard," he said, "and the shooting can be so repetitious when they film a scene again and again. It's not like acting in a play, because 95 percent of the labor is not going to be used at all," but will end on the cutting-room floor.

Nissenbaum, whose book, co-authored by Paul Boyer, "Salem Possessed: The Social Origins of Witchcraft," won the major prize of the American Historical Association for 1974, was nominated for the National Book Award, and helped provide the premise for Vic Pisano's screenplay.

"The really exciting thing for me is to see that a scholarly work can have an effect on something as dramatic and beautiful as this screenplay."

"Nobody knew then, or knows now, precisely what it was the girls were experiencing. They never told; perhaps they did not know themselves. By February 1692 it was the grownups who began to try to put into words what was happening to their children: 'odd postures,' 'foolish, ridiculous speeches,' 'distempers,' 'fits,' " Boyer and Nissenbaum, "Salem Possessed."

Whatever the afflicted girls action sprang from, the odd postures, and foolish, ridiculous speeches, led to imprisonment and death, in Boston jail or on Salem's gallows hill for the victims. They led to confessions, including the one by Tituba, the West Indian slave, who even volunteered a description of the devil as "a thing all over hairy, all the face hairy, and a long nose."

They led to jail and heavy leg irons in Boston prison for Dorcas Good, the four-year-old daughter of accused witch Sarah Good.

They led to division and turmoil within Salem Village (now Danvers) and Salem Town (Salem) — neighbor against neighbor and family against family — and even family members puzzled and divided amongst themselves.

For Christina Trask, an actress of Richard Trask, historical advisor and extra (a pike-carrying court official) in the production, the witch hysteria led her to drive a pair of scissors through her own throat — the victim, contemporaries said, of the spells of Bridget Bishop.

Trask, who is Danvers Town Archivist, and an expert on local dress, artifacts and costumes for the period said that Bishop, by the way, "kept an ordinary (pub) which provided such dangerous diversions as shuffleboard and amounted to a hangout for village youths," a quarter of a mile from Salem Village. Bridget Bishop was also among those who were convicted of witchcraft and executed.

Yet out of all this Vic Pisano still found the story of the love of three sisters: accused and convicted witches Sarah Cloyce (played by Vanessa Redgrave), Rebecca Nurse and Mary Easty (played, respectively, by veteran American lead actresses Phyllis Thaxter and Kim Hunter.)

"A sad tale's best for winter,"

—Shakespeare, "The Winter's Tale" and though it's not quite mid-winter yet — and it's certainly not all hallow's eve, this is an appropriate time to consider witchcraft.

For it was just about this time of year — time for the chill winter storms to howl about us, enveloping the region — that the start of this story began to envelope Massachusetts in denunciation and subsequent tragedy.

But one week's space is not sufficient to tell this tale, so the story is to be continued next week, to meet Vanessa Redgrave and many others, and to learn more of Rita Doherty's experiences on the set of "Three Sovereigns for Sarah," and the long-ago witch trails — to bring us closer to midwinter and provide a conclusion to this winter's tale.

Roving From S-1

Record," in 1892, revealed that 137 out of 187 high school girls diagnosed complained of headaches, which was clear evidence that women were unable to cope with advanced academic study. The idea that education overtaxed a woman's underdeveloped brain was also used as an excuse for psychic disorders, fatigue and depression. Gloria Steinem, where was your great grandmother then?

In Joseph Kane's "Facts About the Presidents," he reveals that Grover Cleveland was known as "the executioner." Cleveland got the nickname before he became president, while he was sheriff of Erie County, New York. Cleveland's responsibilities as sheriff included putting the noose around convicted criminals' necks, tightening the rope and springing the trapdoor.

In 1887 a counterfeit one hundred dollar bill surfaced that was so real-looking that the federal government decided to recall $26 million worth of legitimate one hundred dollar bills. It was the only time in history that legitimate currency was recalled in order to flush out counterfeit currency.

William McKinley always carried a napkin around with him. Why? Because his wife frequently suffered from epileptic seizures. Whenever she took one in public, McKinley would throw the napkin over her face.

"I think I can say, and say with pride, that we have legislatures that bring higher prices than anywhere in the world." One of the many maxims of Mark Twain.

Make it a good week.

WE CAN DO MORE WITH YOUR IRA. SO YOUR IRA CAN DO MORE FOR YOU.

Individual Retirement Accounts are by no means all alike. Admittedly, they all reduce your taxes and they all add to your nest egg—but IRAs are far from equal in how much they add to your retirement and how fast they build up funds. That's why the choice of how to put your IRA is crucial. And that, in turn, is why you should consider E.F. Hutton.

And Hutton lets you put your IRA in any one of scores of powerful investments: U.S. Government insured CDs, for instance. Professionally managed mutual funds. Limited partnerships. Treasury Bill Receipts. And any of the tens of thousands of bonds and equities on the market.

And E.F. Hutton makes it easy for you to change. As you get closer to retirement, as you develop new investment strategies, as your financial situation changes—Hutton makes it simple to change your IRA investments.

What's more, E.F. Hutton gives you advice. Your Hutton Account Executive is trained specifically in investments. Trained to show you all the options. To coordinate your IRA with all of your finances. To advise. And of course to listen.

Tell me more about getting more for retirement.

The more I think about it, the more I think my IRA belongs at E.F. Hutton.

I need more information. Please send me your free brochure on IRAs at Hutton.

I have more questions, please have an Account Executive get in touch with me.

Assertiveness training at Health Center

The Regional Health Center in Wilmington is sponsoring an Assertiveness Training Workshop on Mondays, January 21, 28, February 4 and 11 from 7 to 9 p.m. to help participants improve their communication skills.

Assertiveness is the ability to express one's feelings, both negative and positive, in an open, straightforward manner, when appropriate. An assertive person is able to express anger and resentment without feelings of hostility or guilt.

Lack of assertiveness skills are the cause of social stress and frustration because the person who holds back his/her feelings and thoughts never gets what he really wants. These feelings can eventually explode alienating those around him. Both the passive and passive-aggressive person goes through life without getting needs met because they are not expressed.

On the other side of the spectrum is the aggressive person who tends to say too much, can be tactless and a poor listener, thus alienating others.

Both the passive and aggressive types can benefit from an assertiveness training workshop where they can learn to express themselves more positively and where they will learn active listening skills and how to respond to others who are angry or upset.

The workshop will be limited to 20 participants so there will be

MOVIE REVIEWS

The Killing Fields

Johnny Dangerously

Mickey and Maude

Rochelle Flynn

The Killing Fields Starring Sam Waterson, Haing S. Ngor, John Malkovich. Directed by Roland Joffe. Produced by David Puttnam. Written by Bruce Robinson. Rated R (violence, profanity, adult themes).

One hates to drag out such overused adjectives as 'touching' and 'haunting,' but The Killing Fields is such an evocative film that there really are no other words to properly describe it.

The Killing Fields is one of those remarkable films that exposes great atrocities against humanity, but leaves a glimmer of hope in the end. Based on an actual article in the New York Times Magazine (January, 1980), this tale of journalist Sydney Schanberg and his Cambodian interpreter Dith Pran is outlined against magnificent cinematography. Sam Waterson and Haing S. Ngor are appropriately moving in the title roles.

The direction, by newcomer Roland Joffe, is economical and clean. He doesn't set the audience up for obvious heart-wrenching, calculated scenes, but relies on something far more powerful: simplicity. The Killing Fields is a masterpiece, and the most intelligent, realistic drama of the year.

Johnny Dangerously Starring Michael Keaton, Marilu Henner, Maureen Stapleton, Griffin Dunne, Joe Piscopo. Directed by

Mickey and Maude Starring Dudley Moore, Amy Irving, Ann Reinking, Richard Mulligan. Directed by Blake Edwards.

Written by Jonathan Reynolds. Produced by Tony Adams. Rated PG-13 (profanity).

Mickey and Maude is a silly, silly film that should never have been made, and completely wastes the comedic talents of Dudley Moore. One can only wonder why this man continues to make such awful movies. Also, what happened to Blake Edwards? This man has directed such extraordinary films as Breakfast at Tiffany's and Days of Wine and Roses. Has Edwards gone so Hollywood that now he can only churn out

By William Pacino

There is always a search on to discover activities that can fill leisure time in an entertaining and stimulating way. One of the more satisfying pursuits is learning how to paint with watercolors. It is the type of activity that can be done throughout the year and throughout life.

Ask a watercolorist to define the magic of this type of painting and three qualities are mentioned: transparency, speed and spontaneity. Dab a bit of color onto a palette, swirl the brush around to make a bright liquid and the effort creates a pool of tinted water. Next brush that color onto a sheet of white paper. The light will shine through the color like sunlight passing through stained glass.

In short, a watercolor painting is full of light. Because watercolor dries as soon as the water evaporates - a matter of minutes - quickness and decisiveness is called for. Every painting is exciting, a race against time.

Watercolor is for people who like speed and action. Because of the rapid drying time, the painting must be executed with a few bold, well-planned strokes. That's why a good watercolor painting looks so lively and spontaneous.

There are many local courses available that teach the would-be watercolorist how to get into this activity. Habitat in Belmont, Bill Velmore in Stoneham, Arts 'n Facts Studio in Stoneham, Middlesex and North Shore Community Colleges are just a few of the places to find the knowledge necessary to get started and to develop the methods of watercolor painting.

An initial materials list is presented with The Art Shoppe and Gallerie in Reading, Jones Crafts in Reading, and Henderson Stationers in Winchester recommended as good sources of the supplies necessary to get going.

PAINTS — The Winsor and Newton colors are very popular because they are less expensive than others. Colors to start out with include: Alizarin Crimson, Winsor Red, Burnt Sienna, Yellow Ochre, Indian Yellow, Winsor Yellow, Winsor Green, Winsor Blue, French Ultramarine, and Violet. Of course, more colors are available and can be added as needed.

BRUSHES — Buy good quality brushes. Test in the store (in water, if possible) for springiness. Search out a thin straight edge for the flat end brushes and a sharp point for the round brushes. Look for brand names such as Grumbacher, Strathmore, Simmons and Morilla.

PAPER — Arches, Strathmore, Morilla and Fabriano all make good 100% rag paper. Try buying cold pressed paper in a block which has the edges sealed. Single sheets require stretching or taping, as the water will curl the paper otherwise.

Why not try watercolor?

PALETTE — Paint is expensive, so a good palette for keeping squeezed out paint is recommended. A plastic tray with 20 wells and a large center area for mixing is perfect for this need.

The first work in the first watercolor class will probably look like mud. But watercolor painting is an acquired skill.

Just keep painting and one day someone will think enough of the work to display it in a prominent place. That gives watercolor painting the distinction of being a joy in its creation process and a joy when it is done. Double the pleasure through a most satisfying activity.

Habitat, 10 Juniper Rd., Belmont, Velmore Studios, Main St., Stoneham, Artist Shoppe & Gallerie, 281 Main St., Reading, Arts 'n Facts Studio and Gallery, 489 Main St., Stoneham, Henderson Stationers, Main St., Winchester, Jones Crafts, 622 Main St., Reading.

Basic Water Colour Methods

Wet-in-Wet. If you wet the paper first — with pure water or with liquid colour — then apply darker strokes to the wet surface, those fresh strokes will blur. The wooded island in the mist was painted in this technique to create a feeling of remoteness.

Flat Wash. These rocks and the distant mountain are painted in flat washes. You paint a flat wash in parallel strokes that overlap slightly so the wet strokes flow together to form an even tone. Paint one wash over another, working from light to dark.

SKETCH PAD — A pad is necessary for taking notes, doing exercises, planning, etc. Get one with firm sheets of paper that can take water.

OTHER ITEMS — Color wheel to determine complementary colors, rags, a water container to rinse brushes (one pint size), sponges, Maskoid or water resist to be applied with an old or cheap pointed brush, non-abrasive eraser, sketching pencil, plastic lids (from cottage cheese and coffee cans) to hold special mixtures of paints.

The techniques of watercolor painting can be learned rather easily. The methods of flat wash, graded wash, wet-in-wet, and dry brush are basic. Other methods such as the use of a half-loaded brush, glazing, oozles and whisking are sure to follow in the course of instruction.

A few tips to round out this introduction to the satisfaction of watercolor painting.

Do not seek poster paint quality while painting. Always have a little water on the brush. Let the paper shine through.

Set up your palette like a colorwheel. Organize colors to range from a cool red to a violet. Mix colors first on the palette. The best work acknowledges that nothing can be represented by a primary color right out of the tube. Everything is a mixture.

"I Learned More Than I Thought I Would." ATI FACULTY "Go(es) All Out For The Student."

Recently we got these comments from several recent graduates of ATI's programs:

Chris McHugh (Electronics) writes:

"I enrolled in ATI's Computer Electronics program to learn about electronics and their practical application. (I) have received a very good understanding of electronics and computer internals."

In addition, the services offered by ATI are excellent. (I) learned a lot about job finding, interviewing and running down concrete leads. (I) am going to miss ATI and will always give the school a good recommendation."

Gal Pento (Electronics) writes:

"I learned more than I thought I would, and I wish I could have had more time. Russo (the teacher), has a great way to relate to the students, which helps us to understand better. I love it (ATI Services). They go all out for the students and show you how to have more confidence in yourself."

Finally, Jim Stallings (Refrigeration & Air Conditioning) writes: "I got a lot out of this course. I feel good about what I learned here and if I had to do it again I would."

PURINA CAT CHOW CELEBRITY CATS

1985

From Barbara Mandrell's fluffy white "Peaches," to Kenny and Marianne Roger's feline friends, "Kit" and "Kaboodle," they're the cats of the stars and they've posed, along with 24 other celebrity kitties, for the calendar.

Famous Felines—the cats of entertainment personalities—star in a new calendar available free.

Thirteen cats will appear as "cat of the month," along with the celebrity owner's signature and a quote about the star's relationship with his or her four-legged companion. 1985 is the 11th year that Ralston Purina has been coming out with Purina Cat Chow Calendars. This is the first time the felines of famous entertainers will be featured. Twenty-five stars, including Mike Farrell, Ed McMahon, Burgess Meredith, Stefanie Powers, Sally Struthers and others, volunteered to have their four-legged companions photographed for the calendar. In exchange, the cat food company contributed financially to various humane and other charitable organizations on behalf of the participating celebrities.

Roberta Flack's cat, "Caruso," poses as February "Cat of the Month" for a 1985 Celebrity Cats Calendar.

FREE CALENDAR

The calendar can be obtained free by sending in weight circles from the cat food, or by sending $7 to 1985 Purina Cat Chow Calendar, P.O. Box 15692, Mascoutah, IL 62221. Details on specially marked packages of Cat Chow and Kitten Chow.

A Patch of Blue. - This North Shore jazz quintet will perform in concert to benefit the 1986 International First Earth Run for Peace.
